HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM LAST YEAR AND WHAT AFFECTED ITS PERFORMANCE?

For the one-year period ended December 31, 2024, the Fund (LIMAX) rose 15.00% and the S&P 500 Index returned 25.02%.

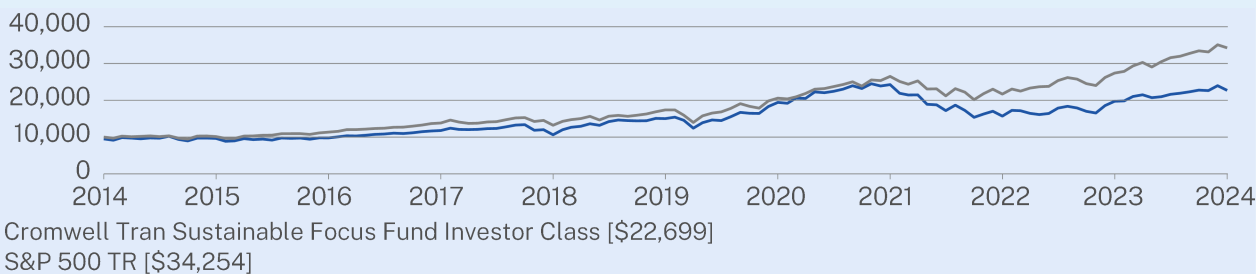

In 2024, the U.S. economy benefited from declining inflation, healthy employment levels, and a steady GDP growth. The Fund's performance was driven by the following factors:

- In 2024, stock market performance was primarily dominated by the largest tech companies. The Magnificent Seven (Alphabet, Amazon, Apple, Meta Platforms, Microsoft, NVIDIA, and Tesla), on average, returned over 60% and accounted for over half of the S&P 500's 2024 return. While the Fund owned some of the seven companies, we did not own all of them. Specifically, we did not own Apple and Tesla due to our fundamental concern that they are particularly expensive relative to their earnings growth.
- Specific underweights against the Magnificent Seven contributed nearly 550 basis points of underperformance against the S&P 500 Index. For example, not owning Apple and Tesla resulted in 300 bps of negative contribution.
- The Fund's overweight in Amazon and Meta contributed nearly 200 bps of outperformance. However, it was not enough to offset the underweight in the former two, which together make up close to 7% of the S&P 500, and the Magnificent Seven all together.
- Other areas of underperformance came from the Fund's lower weight in Financials. While Progressive was up over 50% in 2024, the Fund was underweight in banks, which as an industry group, returned 38%.
- The Fund's bottom three performers in the year all faced cyclical pressures despite their industry-leading franchises. Our bottom contributors in 2024 were AMN Healthcare Services, a provider of nursing and healthcare staffing; Aptiv, a provider of active safety and electrical architectures for autos; and Entegris, a provider of materials purity and filtration solutions used in semiconductor manufacturing.
- Top performers in the year were Talen Energy, an independent power producer, along with NVIDIA, Amazon, Meta Platforms, and Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing.
